CO-CHAIRS

Lorraine Miller served as interim President and CEO of the NAACP and former Clerk of the United States House of Representatives. Miller was the first woman and African American, respectively, to hold both offices. Prior to her role as clerk, Miller served as Senior Adviser and Director of Intergovernmental Relations to then-House Speaker Nancy Pelosi. In addition to working for Rep. Pelosi, Miller has worked for several other Members of Congress, including Rep. Jim Wright, Rep. Tom Foley and Rep. John Lewis. Miller has also worked in the executive branch, serving in the Clinton Administration as Deputy Assistant for the House of Representatives in the White House Office of Legislative Affairs. She earned her B.A. from University of North Texas and her M.B.A. from Georgetown.

James Roosevelt, Jr. served as the President and CEO of Tufts Health Plan from 2005 until his retirement in December 2015. He also was a Senior Vice President and General Counsel at Tufts Health Plan prior to becoming President and CEO. Roosevelt was the Associate Commissioner for Retirement Policy for the Social Security Administration before joining Tufts Health Plan in 1999. He also spent 10 years as partner at Choate, Hall & Stewart in Boston. He has served as Chief Legal Counsel for the Massachusetts Democratic Party and is past Chairman of the Board of Trustees for the Massachusetts Hospital Association, past President of the American Health Lawyers Association and past Chairman of the Board of Trustees for Mount Auburn Hospital. Currently, Roosevelt serves as Chairman of the Board of Directors for Massachusetts Association of Health Plans, and as a member of the boards at America's Health Insurance Plans, Catholic Democrats, Emmanuel College, and the Kenneth B. Schwartz Center. He was called upon in 2008 to oversee hearings on controversies related to seating delegates from Florida and Michigan to the 2008 Democratic National Convention and is a DNC Rules and Bylaws Committee Co-Chair.

VICE CHAIRS

Fiona Ma is a member of the California State Board of Equalization, where she has served since 2015. She previously served on the San Francisco Board of Supervisors from 2002-2006 and in the California State Assembly from 2006-2012, where she served as Speaker pro Tempore. While serving in the Assembly, Ma authored legislation to ban toxic chemicals, known as phthalates, in baby products statewide. This was the first such law in the nation and became the model for the federal amendment on the same subject, authored by U.S. Senator Dianne Feinstein, which was signed into law as part of the federal Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act of 2008. Ma took a lead in promoting trade and fostering relationships between California and Asia and has led legislative delegations to China, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Japan. She received her B.S. from the Rochester Institute of Technology, her M.S. in Taxation from Golden Gate University, and an MBA from Pepperdine University.

Rosie Perez is an American actress, community activist, talk show host, author, dancer, and choreographer. She has been a regular host on The View and performed on Broadway. President Barack Obama appointed her to The Presidential Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS (PACHA). Perez serves as the chair of the artistic board for Urban Arts Partnership, a New York City arts education nonprofit that uses arts integrated education programs to close the achievement gap. In February 2014, Rosie Perez published an autobiography titled Handbook for an Unpredictable Life: How I Survived Sister Renata and My Crazy Mother, and Still Came Out Smiling... a book that analyzes the cause and effects of child abuse. She starred in and directed the Spanish AIDS PSA campaign "Join the Fight" for Cable Positive and Kismet Films, after her mom passed away from aids related complications.

Edward Romero served as U.S. Ambassador to Spain and Andorra from 1998-2001. Romero was particularly critical of the Vietnam War and helped form the activist group "Veterans Against Vietnam." During the Carter administration he served as a member of the Federal Advisory Committee for Trade Negotiations and of the U.S. Delegations on the Helsinki Accords. In 1989, the Hispanic Chamber of the Commerce named him the National Hispanic Businessman of the Year. He is one of the founders of "Valor Telecommunications Southwest, LLC." He was the founder, Chairman, and Chief Executive Officer of Advanced Sciences, Inc., an international environmental engineering and waste management corporation. He continued as the President after the company merged with Commodore Applied Technologies, Inc. Romero fought in the Korean War, and studied at Los Angeles State College and Citrus College.

Campaign Manager of McAuliffe's 2013 campaign for Governor. In 2008, he served as Executive Director of the Democratic Party of Virginia. At the time he was one of the youngest state Democratic Party executive directors in the United States. Stoney has worked in various public and private sector capacities, including for Virginia State Senator R. Creigh Deeds and former Delegate C. Richard Cranwell. He is a member of VCU Massey Cancer Center Advisory Board, member of LEAD Virginia Board of Directors, member of the Virginia State Bar's Unauthorized Practice of Law Committee, member of the Jamestown Yorktown Foundation 2019 Commemoration Steering Committee and member of the Ujima Legacy Fund. Stoney received his undergraduate degree from James Madison University in 2004.

MEMBERS

Hareth Andrade is an immigrant rights leader from Arlington, Virginia. Since her teenage years, Andrade has been traveling across the nation to speak on the countless challenges of growing up without her parents, and as an American living without papers. In 2012, faced with her father's deportation, Andrade organized a national campaign that came to the attention of policy leaders, community organizers, and pro-migrant organizations. Her efforts led to an invitation to introduce the President of the United States, Barack Obama, at the National AFL-CIO convention. Andrade's passion for justice has also been reflected in the work that she does for immigrant students in the state of Virginia. She is the founder of the student organization, Dreamers of Virginia, and co-founder of The Dream Project, through which she has pioneered the fight for in-state tuition to further post-secondary educational access for undocumented students. Andrade has a degree from Northern Virginia Community College.

Keith Boykin is a New York Times best-selling author, assistant adjunct professor of political science at Columbia University, TV commentator, journalist, actor and public speaker. Each of Boykin's four books has been nominated for a Lambda Literary Award, including his most recent book, For Colored Boys Who Have Considered Suicide When The Rainbow Is Still Not Enough, which won the American Library Association Stonewall Award for Nonfiction in 2013. Educated at Dartmouth and Harvard, Boykin served in the White House as a special assistant to President Bill Clinton, where he was once the highest ranking openly gay person in the Clinton White House. He also helped organize and participated in the nation's first ever meeting between a sitting president and leaders of the LGBT community. Boykin is a veteran of six political campaigns, including two presidential campaigns, and he was named one of the top instructors when he taught political science at American University in Washington. He starred on the 2004 Showtime television series American Candidate, and then became a co-host of the BET J TV series My Two Cents, where he interviewed celebrities, politicians, and public figures. Currently a CNBC contributor, MSNBC commentator and BET columnist, Boykin is also the former editor of the online news site, The Daily Voice.

Sister Simone Campbell has served as Executive Director of NETWORK since 2004. She is a religious leader, attorney and poet with extensive experience in public policy and advocacy for systemic change. In Washington, she lobbies on issues of peace-building, immigration reform, healthcare and economic justice. Around the country, she is a noted speaker and educator on these public policy issues. In 2012, she was also instrumental in organizing the "Nuns on the Bus" tour of nine states to oppose the "Ryan Budget" approved by the House of Representatives. This budget would decimate programs meant to help people in need. "Nuns on the Bus" received an avalanche of attention across the nation from religious communities, elected officials and the media.

He graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Sidney Topol was a contributor to several key developments in the telecommunications industries in the latter half of the twentieth century. A graduate of the University of Massachusetts Amherst and an Army Air Corps radar specialist, Topol later became an engineer and executive at Raytheon and later Scientific-Atlanta. Topol's expertise in microwave systems led to the development of the first effective portable television relay links, allowing broadcasts from even remote areas. His foray into satellite technologies in the 1960s provided the foundation for building the emerging cable television industry, permitting the transmission of transoceanic television broadcasts. Topol also played a pivotal role in the development of international telecommunications trade policies and the promotion of high definition television (HDTV). Topol has been engaged in philanthropic work, contributing to the educational and cultural life in Boston and Atlanta, and he sits on the boards of WGBH-TV and Americans for Peace Now.
